A Printed Letterhead

Adds distinction or "class" to your correspondence.

It isn't only the business firm or professional man who now raises his correspondence above the mediocre through aid of the printer's art.

Just your name and address in neat lettering at top or corner of the sheet will add an individual touch that at once raises your letter above the dead level of "ordinary".

The additional cost per letter is trifling.

But of course much depends on the printing.

Remarkable Record of Maui Missionary

Interesting Sketch of Miss Charlotte L. Turner's Thirty-four Years of Service in Island Work.

In the last number of The Friend, under the head of "Missionary Emeritus," is published a very interesting sketch of the work of Miss Charlotte L. Turner, which should be of especial interest to the many friends of this lady on Maui. The article follows:

"After thirty-four years of almost continuous missionary service on Maui, Miss Charlotte L. Turner has resigned, her work as Chinese and Japanese missionary under the Board at Wailuku terminating on September 1, shortly after the arrival of her successor, Mrs. Leslie R. Matthews.

Regret at Miss Turner's resignation is universal. Her career has been most fruitful, her fine personality and sympathetic interest in every good work being strong factors in her success. Although forfeiting her services as an official missionary, Maui is to be congratulated upon keeping Miss Turner on the island. She is to be a companion to Mrs. H. P. Baldwin at Makawao and her strong Christian influence will continue to be felt in private life.

The following sketch names the conditions under which Miss Turner came to the islands and outlines briefly her work on Maui:

"August 3, 1881, a 'Farewell Meeting' was given for eleven missionaries by the A. B. C. F. M. at Pilgrim Hall, Boston. Among the number were the Misses Turner and Manross under appointment for the Ainaka Government school, Kohala, Hawaii. It was customary at that time for the Hawaiian Board of Education to confer with the American Board as to selection of teachers, hence Misses Turner and Manross were chosen by the American Board for their island work, but they were to receive their support from the Hawaiian Board of Public Instruction.

In September, 1881, the two workers arrived in Kohala, and began their work, being associated with Mr. Edward Dyer, the principal of the school, and his wife. Ainaka at that time was a large ungraded school with only two teachers. There was a growing desire on the part of Hawaiians for the English language and Ainaka school became one of the largest schools in the district. Misses Turner and Manross remained in this school six years, there being no break in the teaching force during that time. It was the privilege of the teachers to see the pupils pass through the various grades, then on to higher educational work, and some to important business positions in the islands and elsewhere.

At the expiration of six years Miss Turner was granted a year's leave of absence by the Board of Education, and her co-worker, Miss Manross, resigned. Miss Turner returned and continued in the work. In addition to her school work, she assisted in the Iole Hawaiian church, and the Foreign church. After three years she resigned from the government school work. Later, for a period of eight months, she took the Chinese Mission work at Makapala in Kohala, then under the Hawaiian Board, after which she substituted for a time at Kamehameha Preparatory School, Honolulu.

"In 1903 she was asked to assist in the Waihee Government School, then under the principalship of Mr. Dunas. After three years she took charge of the Chinese Mission work in Wailuku, succeeding Mrs. Fanny Simpson, the pioneer worker there. She was associated in her work with the faithful evangelist, Mr. Teng Ah Lin, and Mr. Ching Tong, Chinese teacher. During the four years residence at this Vineyard street Mission, many pressing needs were met among the people. The bubonic plague came to Kahului and quarantine laws were enforced. As many of the Wailuku Chinese had been frequent visitors in Kahului before the nature of the disease was known, an outbreak in Wailuku was feared, hence no public gatherings were held for a long time. The Chinese merchants were afraid of an outbreak, and that their homes might be burned so they came to the 'Worker' to assist in protecting their valuables, such as jewelry, money, etc. This was done by placing them in various safes in the town, after the coin had been properly submerged in disinfectants, and other things fumigated.

"Some of the restaurant men even asked for wood in order to keep on with their business, and the Worker offered a part of her woodpile. Fortunately Wailuku escaped the dread disease. When the quarantine was lifted, several hundred people of various nationalities came into Wailuku all needing assistance in the form of food, and clothing. Money was raised by the residents, and the little Vineyard Street Chinese Mission home was the distributing center. Rev. John Lewis, then pastor of Union Church, providing for the men, while Miss Turner looked after the women and children.

"In September, 1901, the Alexander House Settlement and the Workers' Home sprang into existence through the earnest efforts of Mrs. N. J. Malone, and was secured through the generosity of the Wailuku plantation directors. The way then opened for a site for a Chinese church. The Chinese and friends of the Mission contributed liberally to the erection of the building, which was completed the same year. One room in the church was to be used for school purposes, hence the Chinese Mission work was transferred to the Settlement site. Since that time Miss Turner has continued her work among the Chinese, taking in addition the Japanese work, having been specially interested in the women and girls, and in the establishment of a Japanese Girls' Home. She has formed a part of the Settlement Home, and

Young Kohala Girl Brutally Murdered

Waylaid In Broad Daylight On Way From School and Stabbed to Death.—Body Dragged Into Cane Field.

HILO, Oct. 18.—Further details of the horrible murder in the Kohala district have reached Hilo. The murdered girl is Harriet Kunani, the seventeen years old daughter of the late Deputy Sheriff Kunani. The girl was murdered on October 8 in a cane field near her home, which is not far from the Kohala mill.

The young girl attended school at the seminary on the morning of the murder, and it was when returning from the institution she met her fate. As she did not return on time from school, her mother went in search of her. As there was no sign of the girl to be seen the police were told of the affair.

A Japanese automobile driver said that on his way out from Kohala he saw a Filipino on the road, apparently waiting for some one, and that he saw the girl approaching in the distance.

The police immediately proceeded to the spot where the Japanese had seen the girl and there, on the side of the road, discovered her hat. Then as the trail led into the cane field, the police made their way through the fence and, after getting about twenty feet into the field, found the dead body of the young girl. Her throat was cut and she had many other wounds on her body.

The whole of Kohala is stirred up over the horrible outrage and the police, under instructions from Sheriff Pua who is on the spot, have arrested every Filipino who was not at work on the day of the murder. From certain clues that have been discovered, there seems to be a probability that three Filipinos were active agents in the terrible crime.

According to the doctor's opinion, the girl had been dead for many hours when found. It was not till half-past one o'clock on Saturday morning that the police found the body.

The people of Kohala are hoping that the brutal murderers will soon be in custody, as many people are afraid to leave their houses at present owing to the fact that the murderers are still at large. Sheriff Pua is working hard on the case and is said to have some important information that may lead to the speedy arrest of the brutes who committed the crime.

Relief Sent To Ship-Wrecked On Midway

HONOLULU, Oct. 19.—Nine men and one woman, the crew of the American schooner O. M. Kellogg, reached Midway Island Wednesday October 13, from Laysan Island. The schooner piled up on Maro reef, September 15, and is believed to be a total loss. Her crew got to Laysan in a ship's boat, and at Laysan chartered the sloop Helene of Max Schlemmer. In this Midway was made.

The ten arrived at Midway exhausted from lack of food, according to an Associated Press despatch from Midway via San Francisco.

Captain Lunn was master of the schooner. The woman of the party is his wife. They and the others were afloat two weeks in the ship's boat and the Helene between Maro and Midway. Departure from Maro reef was September 26, eleven days after the schooner struck, and Laysan was reached in two days. The ten remained at Laysan six days, and started for Midway October 4.

The naval tug Iroquois sailed from Honolulu for Midway last Friday, to bring back the cast-aways, and is due on her return some time next week.

Anonymous Writer Again Charges Jail Abuses

Another anonymous letter has come to hand alleging various abuses on the part of the keepers of the Wailuku jail towards the prisoners in their custody. This letter was received this week through the postoffice, by County Attorney Bevins, and is doubtless written by the same person who wrote some months ago to the board of prison inspectors on the same subject. Mr. Bevins may inquire into the matter, but inasmuch as he does not know the identity of the writer of the letter it will be difficult to establish the truth of most of the charges. The letter charges that prisoners, except Hawaiians, are robbed of tobacco and edibles by the guards of the jail, and refused sufficient covering on cold nights to keep them warm. The most serious allegation however, has to do with the treatment of certain women prisoners by the guards.

The prison board made an investigation before of these same kind of charges, but was unable to confirm them, or to learn the name of the writer of the letter.

been identified with its interests during fourteen years of its existence, as well as endeavoring to contribute as much as possible to the uplift of all nationalities. During the 34 years of her connection with work in Hawaii, Miss Turner has seen many marked changes in the development of the country, both in government affairs, educationally, commercially and along the lines of humanitarian work."

Weekly Market Letter

Fresh Island eggs are getting scarcer and the wholesale price has jumped to 60c a dozen. Some dealers are retailing eggs as high as 75c a dozen but consignors cannot expect to get this when their eggs are sold wholesale. Restaurants and boarding houses find it almost impossible to make a profit on eggs when they have to pay 60c a dozen and they threaten to buy California eggs which they can get at a much lower rate.

There is a good market for fat poultry. The price of turkeys has advanced to 40c a pound live weight. It is likely that the price at Thanksgiving will be between 35c and 40c. Muscovy ducks are plentiful. This is one of the best table birds raised in the islands and a great many more people should use them.

Cabbage and sweet corn are scarce and high. A rancher on Molokai is getting ready to plant 10 acres of sweet corn and if he succeeds in raising a good product he no doubt will be able to keep a steady supply in the Honolulu market. Island Irish potatoes are selling slowly in competition with California spuds.

According to a report from the feed dealers the price of dried corn is likely to take a big drop in the near future, due to large importations from the Orient. It is said that the local growers refused to accept a reasonable price for their corn and that the dealers were forced to buy outside corn against their wishes. This is unfortunate, if true, and may mean that the grower will have to sell at a much lower price in order to compete with imported corn.

The price of hides has dropped 1/2c due to depression in the hide market on the mainland.
